HAWAIIAN PLANTERS DISCUSS THE LABOR PROBLEM

The Relations of Rainfall and Forests is Debated-New Officers Elected.

The labor problem and the subject of forestry occupied the attention of the M. O'Shangnessy and John M. Horner made reports on forestry which were discussed at length. The two reports held opposing views upon the connection between forests and rainfall. Mr. O Shaugnessy claimed that his observations in Hawaii and Maui bore him out in the belief that the destruction of forests tends to diminish the rainfall. He urged that the planter and the government co-operate in the matter of preserving the forests and in reforesting where forests have been destroyed. Mr. Horner talked in favor of soul! homesteaders, whom he believed were worth more to this country than the ments with a small cash payment down. forests. He did not believe that forests increase the rainfall.

> Paul Isenberg thought it was no worth while to give homesteads to people until means of marketing products were made. "Kamehameha III was the greatest homesteader we have had. He gave to every native a piece of land and that has been the greatest curse to the Hawaiians. They couldn't use their lands and had to sell them. So it will be now. unless the homesteader can really use his land. Under present conditions he can only cut off the wood for sale and then sell the land." Mr. Isenberg favored forest preservation.

The new officers of the association are President, F. A. Schaefer; vice president, C. Boite; treasurer, H. A. Isenberg; sec retary, William Pfotenhauer; auditor. J.

Then still in silence, moved by a single purpose, the Yale men formed a circle, and as the other pedestrians made way for them they went around and around the Princeton pair. At first the young man was surprised, then angered, and at last he raised his cane and made a dash for liberty, whereupon the Yale men stopped and, without a word, fell upon him as they do in football, quietly, heavily and quickly.

Then, straightening themselves again into a line, the eight Yalesians stopped a moment and in concert raised their hats to the thoroughly frightened girl and silently resumed their march down the street.-Saturday Evening Post.

"In the town where he was visiting he became acquainted with the local undertaker and in that way was enabled be present at the funeral of a you woman who had expired from shock at seeing her husband fall from a load of bay. He was not burt at all, but she was, to all intents and purposes, as dead as the proverbial door nail. The body was laid out in the parlor, and all the relatives and friends had assembled to pay their last respects to the dead. "As is customary in that locality, a big funeral dinner was served. In the midst of the meal the parlor door opened and in walked the corpse. It didn't take a minute to clear the room, leaving the intruder from the spirit world in sole possession. The undertaker planters at their session yesterday. Liszt's Feat of Memory. In The Century William Mason, the reteran American musician, tells of a remarkable feat of memory performed by the composer Liszt: My friend knew Liszt very well, and having taken a fancy to a composition of mine. "Les Perles de Rosee," which was still in manuscript, he said: "Let me have it for publication. Dedicate it to Liszt I can easily get Liszt to accept the dedication. I am going directly from Lere to Welmar and will see him about it. At the same time I will prepare the way for your reception later as a pupil." Not long afterward I received a letter from my friend in which he told me that when he handed the music to Liszt the latter looked at the manuscript, hummed it over, then sat down and played it from memory. Then, going to his desk, he took a pen and accepted the dedication by writing his name at the top of the title page.
